

Protect your investment:

Most people consider the cost of buying a new appliance to be significant. When appliances falter, our lives and our budgets are upset. A broken refrigerator leaves you with at least $400 of spoiled groceries, a broken stove with no way to make your children dinner, and a broken washing machine with no clean clothes. Add on top of that the cost of buying a new appliance results in a financial hardship for most people. However, this can all be avoided with two easy and inexpensive ways to protect your investment.

1.) Have your appliances professionally installed

Appliances are complicated and expensive. They can be very heavy, require specialized tools, and can have complicated connections with your home's plumbing system. Improper installation can result in broken appliances, invalidated warranties, damage to your home's floors, surfaces, plumbing, cabinets, and ventilation, and injuries. If you want to get the most out of your investment, have them installed by an expert. Installation is usually very inexpensive, and even small mistakes made while installing an appliance yourself can cost you big bucks in the future. Save yourself the time and money! Let us, the true experts, install your new appliance.

2.) Take advantage of extended warranties

Extended warranties are usually very inexpensive and can save you thousands in the future. Some can even cover extra costs like food that spoils when your fridge dies. It's simple and inexpensive to purchase extended warranties and one of the smartest ways to protect your investment.

Appliances are large, heavy, and expensive and you probably don't have the special tools or expertise needed to fix them in a crisis. If you can spare a few thousand dollars without batting an eyelash for new appliances should they break tomorrow, don't buy a warranty. But if you're like most of us, protect yourself by purchasing inexpensive extended warranties when you buy a new appliance and save yourself big money in the long run.
